Home-Based Program

Services

Capernaum provides home-based physical and occupational therapy for infants and children who are:

- Birth to three
- Medically complex and/or technology dependent
- In a family situation with undue hardship (e.g., parents are unable to bring their child to the clinic)
- Post-operative and/or temporarily homebound
- Homebound and have equipment needs or need an updated home exercise program

HIPAA-compliant teletherapy services are available, contingent upon insurance coverage.

Benefits

- Children seen at home are happier and more relaxed, which can lead to increased participation and better outcomes.
- Therapy at home reduces the chance of exposure to infection and communicable diseases.
- Capernaum works closely with all other care providers and medical specialists to provide the most comprehensive support for families.
- Therapists can help assure that the most appropriate, functionally supportive equipment is ordered and that the home environment is adapted for equipment/therapeutic benefit.

Parent Quotes

- “ Our therapist, coming to the home while our son was so small, made our lives manageable!”
- “ The personal effort given by each therapist was evident. It was clear they were passionate about my son’s progress and their work.”
- “ Our therapist went above and beyond. I truly believe my son would not have gotten where he is now as fast without her.”

Home-based therapy, as part of the overall healthcare plan, can make a positive change in the family’s life and improve outcomes for medically complex children.
